

Why is Benin reliant on electricity imports?

Benin is reliant on electricity imports for a significant share of its energy supply. Reform programmes, including plans for electrification, have been put in place in the country, where only 30% of the population had access to electricity in 2017.

Is Benin an energy importer?

Fig. 8 shows that Benin is an energy importer, and very vulnerable in terms of its electricity supplies. Since 1990, between 75% and 99% of its electricity supply was imported, and imports grew sharply from 2007 to 2013, given exponential demand and little national production.

Does Benin have a good energy sector?

This paper analyzed the energy sector in the Republic of Benin, a developing country in West Africa that has many problems in meeting the needs of its population for almost all sectors over the last decade, specifically, between 2010 and 2018, in terms of production, consumption, and imports.

How much electricity does Benin need?

Benin belongs to several institutions like West Africa (WA), the African Union (AU), the World Trade Organization (WTO), ECOWAS, and WAEMU, and has a total installed energy capacity at 349 MW, with estimated electricity needs at 600 MW, given rapidly growing electricity demand, according to the West African Development Bank (BOAD, 2019).

What can Benin do with waste?

Furthermore, Benin is a cotton exporter belonging to the Economic Community of West African States (ECOWAS), and cotton production waste could be used to produce gas and electricity, helping Benin move towards energy self-sufficiency. Likewise, household waste can be converted into energy, and is an ideal raw material for biogas production.

What are the opportunities in power generation in Benin?

A number of opportunities exist in power generation. As Benin seeks to both increase and diversify its electric power generation capacity, opportunities in thermal, solar, wind, and other generation technologies are increasingly attractive to potential investors.
